

The CIMA Business Flight Simulation Certificate

Group Subscription

May 2009

What does Group Subscription provide?

Group Subscription enables participants to enrol in the CIMA Business Flight Simulation Certificate as members of a group of people drawn from the same organisation. Instruction for the Certificate is provided via a series of half-day courses delivered via qualified trainers. These can take place either at the organisation's premises or over the Internet using a free speech connection via the 'Virtual Classroom'. Participants benefit from:

- four 3-hour group training sessions covering Part 1 and Part 2 of the Certificate
- a personal registration for the use of the Business Flight Simulator models online
- interactive computer based tests covering each aspect of the syllabus
- a printed copy of the online Amplifying Intuition material
- two attempts at taking the formal assessment leading to the Certificate
- continued use of the Business Flight Simulator models for the first year after qualifying.

The above figures are exclusive of VAT. The subscription fee is reduced by 20% as above for participants who are CIMA or BCS members, or members of another organisation that has arranged affiliate terms for the Certificate. Instructors' travel expenses may be applicable for locations outside the designated distance from London.

What is the difference between Individual, Group and Corporate Subscription?

Individual Subscription enables a participant to enrol in the CIMA BFS Certificate as a member of a group of up to about ten people drawn from different organisations. Group Subscription provides a reduced cost per participant where multiple registrants from the same organisation are trained simultaneously on client premises or via the Virtual Classroom. Corporate Subscription enables organisations to enrol large numbers of participants in the CIMA Business Flight Simulation Certificate on a rolling annual basis. Details are provided on a separate fee schedule.
